Journey Abroad by One Who Saw

Miss Emma Waldvogel of the Wald-[illegible] in Carmel, returned recently from a seven months' stay in Europe.

The tercentennial exposition at Gotenburg drew her to Sweden before visiting her native country of Switzerland. It was a very well planned, very inspiring exposition. The gardens were beautifully arranged in relation to the buildings. They were particularly fine in September with the mountain ash covered with brilliant orange berries. This orange was repeated in the awnings and in various places on the buildings, making a gay ensemble.

The architecture was very modern. The buildings were beautifully finished on the inside, and the exhibits unusually well arranged. Wherever it was possible, there was a clever touch of [illegible] Machinery Hall was especially interesting, even for one who does not understand much about machinery.

The building devoted to modern interior decoration, weaving, glass, pottery, book-binding and printing afforded great inspiration to those especially interested in the applied arts.

Sweden is a very progressive country and its people most delightful to meet. After enjoying the exhibition, which was entirely of Swedish industries and arts, Miss Waldvogel went by the Gota Canal with its 75 locks to Stockholm, one of the busiest and most picturesque capitals of Europe.

To reach Switzerland from Sweden the most direct way lay through Germany—Berlin, Dresden, Nuremburg, Stuttgart—to Schaffhausen. Germany was at that time—September—in a most chaotic state. The mark was dropping steadily. On entering Germany ten million marks to the dollar was the rate. Three weeks later 180 millions were paid. Prices were rising fast and the people were in serious distress for their daily bread.

From Dresden a side trip to Prague and Vienna showed conditions in Czecho-Slovakia and Austria much more stable and prosperous, but the prices were quite high.

On returning to Germany after a week, conditions were still more desperate and did not permit longer tarrying to a stranger when food was so scarce for the people themselves.

To be in Switzerland among old friends again was, of course, a great pleasure to Miss Waldvogel. To see the old familiar works of art and the creations of recent years was a joy. Switzerland has changed since the war and the years of readjustment following, but the people have not suffered for want of food.

Zurich is the center of all that is new, and during Christmas season there were many fine exhibits. The School of Applied Arts has connected with it a Marionnette theater. The puppets are carved and costumed by the students. The staging and performing of the plays is also done by them.

Switzerland is a magic place winter and summer, and even the Swiss say that this winter was an exceptionally fine one.

A brief visit to Paris ended a most delightful trip.

Monthly Meeting of Humane Society

There will be a regular monthly meeting of the Monterey County Humane Society on Tuesday, April 1, at 3 o'clock, at the Animal Shelter at Jefferson and Johnson streets, Monterey.

Should the weather be inclement, the meeting will be held at the same hour and date at Mrs. Dobbins' home, 1003 Franklin street.

All members are requested to be present as matters of importance are to be brought up, and plans for the pet animal show laid out. This show has been postponed until June, the exact date of which will be announced later.

Prominent Artist to Exhibit Here

(Contributed)

In Jonau Hagemeyer's quaint but lofty gallery up at the top of Ocean avenue on the way to the Forest Theatre there is to be beginning this afternoon and ending April 7, an exhibition of paintings that all Carmel should see. They are the work of Miss N. A. Kuopf, an artist of established reputation in the east and one whom Carmel is proud to entertain.

Miss Knopf is absent from her duties as director of art in the Illinois Woman's College—out on a year's leave—during which time she has been and is now hard at work creating a group of the most sturdy, vibrant, alive canvasses, that no woman, or even man, achieves often in a like time. Unusual physical endurance is [illegible] to keep pace with and support the nervous strain of such enthusiasm, such love of what she sees, and finally, such a creative response as that which the works in her studio represent. I should rather say, in our newer thought, such active love and enthusiasm as here holds her body strong and enduring.

I feel humble when I try to tell of her so shortly. Words and phrases of description drift through my mind. The word genius comes quickly; the "keeping his vital and resilient way" of Francis Thompson, "the new world" and "when the world was young." No mellowed old world does she paint, but the new one, truly. Even those Rockies of Colorado that are scarce clothed in an atmosphere.

A Titan playing close to the earth was she. Our western land at first dismayed her with his vast spaces that make for panorama rather than painting. Our mountains—"ladies clothed in velvet gowns"—she says, she felt as feminine compared with virility of the Rockies, too soft and molten for her ardent brush; works done here since prove her conversion. A huge painting done in a day gives me the vision of her out on the hill or roadside, defiant of searching wind or blazing sun, emptying large tubes of choicest color and dispersing it with swift discrimination over the void of her canvas.

These paintings will make a busy, full gallery. They are not quiet, contemplative—but gay, alive, loud—a sort of strong, full hymn of praise. Someone holds me up for the use of the word loud, because of its connotations, vulgar the most of them. But let us remember Francis Thompson in his Anthem to Earth: "Through the loud vast populacy of heaven." Here is just the use for it. These canvasses of nature sing with color, light, power, beauty.

There lies upon a bench in a quiet corner of the studio a modest portfolio. It contains the choice and unique products of our host of the gallery, one of California's master photographers.

Bank of Italy Official is Here

George E. Gallagher, assistant vice-president of the Bank of Italy in San Francisco, and well known in Carmel, spent several days here recently, visiting the bank's recently acquired branch office in Monterey.

"We are naturally well pleased with the opportunity that we now have to become active in the development of this district," said Mr. Gallagher. "There are few places in California where conditions are more favorable than the Monterey peninsula and it seems almost a certainty that more and more people will be attracted here to remain as permanent residents. This means continued growth and greater prosperity.

"The Bank of Italy, as the largest bank in the state, is generally understood in the cities where we have been longer established, but the people here to co-operate with the needs of business. The fact that the bank has more than 500,000 depositors (approximately one-eighth of the entire population of California) shows the degree of confidence it holds."

The Bank of Italy is the largest financial institution west of Chicago and has total resources in excess of $300,000,000. It ranks as one of the nation's largest banks, in point of banking capital, with $20,000,000 capital and surplus. It maintains 81 branches in 56 cities and is the chief exponent of statewide branch banking in this country. Ownership of the Bank of Italy is held by nearly 14,000 Californians who are its stockholders.

Free Radios Japanese Problem

Congressman A. M. Free of this district broadcast a speech on the Japanese situation in California over the large government radio station at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, on the night of March 15. People of the East have been vitally interested in this problem, and Mr. Free has been called upon to speak so many times on the subject that it was finally arranged for him to broadcast his speech and thus reach millions of people where, otherwise, he could have reached only a few thousand by appearing before audiences in various sections.

Reports coming into the station show that the speech was heard as far north as Canada, as far south as Cuba, and as far west as Iowa. It was also picked up by some of the vessels on the Atlantic.

Looks Forward to Homecoming

Dear Carmel Folks:

I'm Brownie Overstreet and I've been away from you all for quite a while. I'm up at the Rancho La Playa and the humans here are trying to make my ears well again. Sometimes it gets pretty lonesome. Kit and Bill and Phyl and Dee came up to see me the first Sunday, and I looked and looked for them the next Sunday but they didn't come. You see, Phyl and Dee got married and went away to live and there was no one left in the family that could drive the car.

I think I can go home soon now, for my ears are lots better and I won't have to snap at children any more and everybody can pet me all they want to. I'm looking forward to my return and hope Teddy Goold will be in fine form for a good scrap.

Yours truly,

BROWNIE OVERSTREET.

Zoning Plan Get Hard Rap

The tremendous interest aroused by the city zoning proposition was emphasized on Friday night of last week when Arts and Crafts Hall was attended by a large crowd called thither by the announcement that Mrs. Maude Isabel Hogle would make an address and answer questions.

It was a good meeting. The speaker, by her clear analysis of the ordinance and by her reply to questions asked by the audience and also questions published in the Pine Cone's Zoning Catechism, made the issue very clear.

To the entire satisfaction, at least, of the anti-zoners in the audience, and possibly to some of the pro-zoners, the ordinance now up to referendum was shown to be impossible.

Mrs. Hogle's replies to the published questions answered by the city planning to show the "nigger in the wood pile."

For instance, the speaker pointed out that should the ordinance stand, a growing business now located in the residence zone could not enlarge or build more substantially; that chickens and eggs or cut flowers could not be sold in the residence zone; that should a business now located in the residence zone be destroyed by fire, it could not be rebuilt and resumed.

In the matter of the forty-foot by one-hundred lot provision, the speaker declared it to be confiscatory, taking into consideration the fact that there are 260 under the area provided by the ordinance for a building site.

Frequent applause was given the speaker for her clever epigrams and sane deductions. Here's a few of the things she said:

"Art is no guarantee of citizenship."

"Their (the city planning commission) is not lost."

"We will stand for a reasonable and legal ordinance."

She'll Be Here for The Follies

Word has been received from Tilly Polak in Venice. She has been buying extensively for her antique shop all through Holland, Switzerland and Italy, and at the time of writing was about to enter Austria. Miss Polak was looking forward to her stay in Vienna as she was unable to go there on her trip last spring. She expects to sail for America from Liverpool on the White Star liner "Baltic" on April 8, arriving in Carmel on May 1. Miss Polak reports bad weather ever since leaving here and is anticipating with pleasure her return here.

Red Still on Top Rats in Cellar

The weekly baseball games of the Abalone League, at Carmel Woods, go merrily on. Merrily is the word, because the players and spectators get a tremendous kick out of those contests, to say nothing of the health-giving results afforded by two or three hours in the great outdoors.

Last Sunday the Reds won again, maintaining not only their lead, but increasing it. The score was, Reds 16, Blues 8.

The lowly Wood Rats are deeper in the cellar, having lost by one run to the Pioneers. Score, 16 to 15.

The Standing

	W.	L.	Pct.
Reds	6	1	.853
Blues	4	3	.571
Pioneers	3	4	.428
Wood Rats	1	6	.143

The City Board of Trustees meets in regular monthly session next Tuesday night. Routine business will be transacted, as the members are inclined to leave new business to the incoming board.

OZONE ON ZONING PLAN

Non-Voters Declare Stand

The undersigned, non-voters, who are property owners and frequent residents in and about Carmel, desire to add their influence, even though it may be slight, to the passage of the Zoning Ordinance.

They commend it for the following

(1) It is, in its essence, a preventive and conservative measure;

(2) It will accomplish more than the mere abatement of institutions that may be, in themselves, nuisances.

(3) It will prevent the erection of needless structures in inapt places, that would obviously tend to destroy the natural beauty and enjoyable simplicity of the place;

(4) It will help to build up a desir- [illegible] purely commercial;

(5) It will invite and encourage the immediate building of many more homes;

(6) It will not hamper proper growth but will direct it in such way that, in the end, there will remain the maximum beauty of one of the most enthralling [illegible]

(7) It is in accord with all the best known modern theories as to city planning as they have been worked out in scores of cities throughout the country;

(8) It is to prevent that crime which some philosopher has said is the greatest of all—the destruction of natural beauty;

(9) It will help to make Carmel, more and more, not only the Mecca, but the permanent home of those who desire to live and work, not only in peace and quiet, but with the inspiration that comes from that unrivalled picture, unblemished, that lies between Lobos and Pescadero.

Fable of Village of Great Content

By George L. Wood

There was once a wonderful valley, through which a mighty river ran, and upon its banks was a beautiful village which Nature had richly endowed, and man had not spoiled. Because of its flowers, and trees, its singing birds and happy homes, it was known the world over as the Village of Great Content, and people everywhere yearned to live there.

But one spring, because of unusual conditions in the mountains where the river had its source, the people of the Village of Great Content realized that the river would overflow its banks and wash away their homes and destroy their trees and flowers; and the wise men planned to prevent the flood and destruction by building a dam to hold the waters in check.

Then [illegible] certain of the villagers had lands on which the spring flood might leave a deposit of gold, and they objected to the rest of the village being saved at their cost; and some others might be hurt by the dam's construction; and these few, with other foolish ones, derided the plan, [illegible] any suggestions calculated to prevent the damage of the river's flood. And so the wise men built the dam, using what materials were at hand and such knowledge as they had in its construction.

And the river rose mightily behind that dam, threatening it. Those who wanted the immediate gold of the flood pointed out to the people of the Village of Great Content that there were faults in the construction of the dam. They found even more faults than really existed, and demanded that the dam be torn down and rebuilt without faults.

"But," said the wise men, "should the dam be torn down, the village would be destroyed. Now it does hold back the threatening ruin. When the flood-waters subside, we will correct any faults."

"No," said the ones greedy for gold, "tear it down now, and MAYBE we will build a better one later."

So a referendum election was held in the Village of Great Content, while the flooding river's waters pushed hard against the dam the wise men had erected, seeking a way to break through and destroy the village, with the result—?

City Zoning Catechism

Questions asked by citizens regarding the zoning ordinance are here answered by the City Planning Commission and the City Attorney.

Question—How soon can a new Zoning Ordinance be passed if this one is defeated?

Answer—It is questionable that the Board of Trustees can pass any Zoning [illegible] defeated without referring the same to the vote of the people, and an election for the same cannot take place within six months from the date of the coming election, April 14. From a practical standpoint, a board would not attempt to pass an ordinance that had been defeated by referendum.

Question—We are told that this present referendum election is costing the [illegible] Is that true?

Answer—It is not true. The usual cost to the city of a general election is about $325. A referendum, which goes in with a general election, adds so little to the cost as to be practically negligible. Moreover, referendum elections in the future for amending the zoning ordinance as found necessary can be put in, with any other election, municipal, county, state or presidential, at the same small cost.

Question—Isn't the city sure of the sand dunes, even if this ordinance should be defeated?

Answer—The city does not own all of the sand dunes. One and seven-tenths acres, including most of the large white dunes, were sold almost twenty years ago, prior to the advent here of the Carmel Development Company, to the Pacific Land Glass Company of San Francisco. Use of that sand for commercial purposes, now possible on account of the development of motor transportation, would ruin that part of the dunes. Without zoning the beauty of this portion of the beach would be endangered.

No Zoning Better Than Bad Zoning

I have been informed of certain propaganda being used against me to the effect that I would, in case of election, tolerate nothing but concrete roads, and that I am against zoning of any kind.

Now, my favorite type of road is concrete, as I consider it economical in the long run; but this matter would be entirely up to the taxpayers, as I consider it the duty of any trustee to be governed by the opinion of the majority of the taxpayers, not only regarding roads but in all other matters. If the funds available each year are judiciously spent, inside of five years Carmel could have a system of roads good enough, without any special assessments being levied on any one.

As to zoning, I am surely in favor of zoning and was in favor of the pres- [illegible] first proposed. I refused to sign the petition for Mr. G. M. Dorwart, and at once saw Trustee T. B. Reardon to urge the passage of the ordinance, but after hearing it read and giving it some thought, I concluded that to put it into effect would simply be to make [illegible] last moment I signed the petition against it.

Since investigating further and learning of the recent Appellate Court decision, against unsatisfactory zoning, I firmly believe that a vote against Ordinance No. 55 would not be a vote against zoning in Carmel.

Bad zoning is worse than none. I believe that ninety per cent of the residents of Carmel would stand for a proper zoning ordinance.

The difficulties and uncertainties of future amendment have driven the people to demand a proper ordinance at the start.

Why vote a thing on the taxpayers that we know will not stand over night?

C. O. GOOLD.

Another Serra Statue

Sally James Farnham of New York has received the commission for the statue of Fray Junipero Serra to be placed in the garden of the restored San Fernando Mission. The amount of the commission is $25,000, the figure to be life size in bronze. The model will be R. D. MacLean, who plays the role of Father Serra in the popular Mission Play, given each winter at San Gabriel Mission. The statue is the gift of L. C. Brand, whose ancestors were the first American owners of the entire San Fernando Valley.

Prize-Winning Poems

The [illegible] which is offered annually by The Nation has been awarded to Scudder Middleton for his poem "Jezebel." The Macmillan Company publishes a volume of Mr. Middleton's verse under the title of "The New Day."

Edwin Arlington Robinson has won [illegible] Poetry for his poem "Avenel Gray," which was published in the October issue of the magazine. Mr. Robinson's new poem, "The Man Who Died Twice," is to be brought out by Macmillan this month in a limited autographed edition.

Happiness at Last

In Gilbert Frankan's new novel, "Gerald Cranston's Lady," we have a story that is concerned with the meeting of the new world of English finance and the old world of English aristocracy; but primarily a novel of those real problems of love which begin where the fairy tale ends—just beyond the place where the prince and princess are said to "live happy ever after." It will lay a strong grip of reality upon the reader who knows that the "happy ever after" is not a gift but an achievement. In "Gerald Cranston's Lady" one man of extraordinary ability and strength of character and a beautiful woman who has never really loved discover their own secret of happiness at last, after running close to marital shipwreck.

William Edward Johnson of San Jose whose fine voice was heard at Arts and Crafts Hall recently, was here last week. He is moving to Oakland, where he will open a studio.

Historic Books Destroyed

A rare collection of books and manuscripts, including letters of George Washington, Aaron Burr and Benjamin Franklin, gathered for the past 30 years, was damaged at Perth Amboy, N. J., the other day when fire swept through the Dana building, causing losses estimated at $100,000.

City Election News

Three new trustees, a clerk and a treasurer are to be elected. The outgoing trustees are Thomas B. Reardon, Perry Newberry and William L. Maxwell.

The zoning proposition will be decided by a majority vote—not by two-thirds, as some voters suppose.

The first local city election was held in November, 1916. Therefore, with an election every two years since then, next month's contest at the polls will be our sixth.

L. S. Slevin is the senior city official. He was elected treasurer in 1916, when the town was incorporated.

Should Charles O. Goold be elected trustee, Carmel for the first time will have an expert street man on the job.

The pro-zoners held two neighborhood meetings this week, on Monday night at the Blackman home, and on Tuesday at the Hand's.

If you are not on the Great Register on or before April 5 you cannot vote in the presidential primary.

Two—Ray C. DeYoe and Charles Goold have filed for the short, or two-year, term. Four candidates have filed for the long terms, one of them the unexpired term of William L. Maxwell.

Since the last Pine Cone came out two more candidates have entered the contest for trustee — Ray C DeYoe and Henry P. Larouette.

After an inspection of the construction work on The Theatre of the Golden Bough, J. T. Pedrift, prominent Oakland builder, says of the building, "Mr. Gottfried has done a splendid job."

Belinda Plays to Big Business

A full house greeted "Belinda" last night. The public had been led to believe that they would see a good show and they were not disappointed. Arthur Cyril and his capable cast will play again tonight. Next week's Pine Cone will review the production at length. For the first time the beautiful new curtains were used. They were hung by F. L. Bradley of San Francisco.

Colorful Wedding

The [illegible]-Benson wedding at All Saints' last Saturday afternoon was a charming affair. The quaint little church was tastefully decorated, and the rays of sunshine stealing in through the partly open window made a delightful effect.

Local friends of the couple and Stanford student friends of the groom crowded the church. Rev. A. B. Chinn conducted the ceremony. Miss Louise Prince was bridesmaid and Arthur Bragg best man.

THE MEANING OF SERVICE

How about your customers? Do you have to hate them? Let me tell you this: The biggest word in the business lexicon today is service. I know that the word "Service" is used by a good many men who may not know what it means, or in some cases perhaps by men who do not mean what they say. But I know that any institution which honestly endeavors to give a real service to the people of its community is building on solid ground.

This doesn't mean getting the last possible nickel out of every customer that comes into our store. It does mean trying to understand his needs and to provide him with those things which will give him actual service and value and usefulness.

If you are sincerely putting yourself in the customer's place and trying to save him money, trying to fit him with things which will really serve him, you are making a real customer out of him—and one that no smart salesman or one-time salesman, or sharp practice on the part of others can take away from you.

Let me tell you one more thing. No matter how many signs you have got around your place, saying that your motto is service, you cannot get away with it unless you really mean it.

You cannot permanently fool people if you are not in earnest. But if you are sincere and do want to serve the public, they will come to know it and your business will grow.—The Rotarian.

CONCERNING THE COMIC SUPPLEMENT

Serious thoughts on the funny paper are presented by Ernest Brennecke in the Century, who insists that, instead of containing merely flippant froth, the successful funnies carry on a genuine "ethical propaganda."

Mr. Brennecke finds in the funny paper "an exquisite example of the proper flowering of the comic paper. For it does not heavily moralize, but lightly tickles the funny bone; it does not invent fools' paradise where the unenterprising good are rewarded beyond their true desserts, but it reflects the whimsical, ludicrous, and incongruous aspects of life as it really is, where brains and common sense and humor, even when salted with a good dash of the spirit satanic, will triumph in the end, and even when there is a palpable touch of cruelty in that triumph."

Owen Wiser, author of "The Virginian" and other novels, refused an appointment to handle funds to be collected in Philadelphia for German children. He gave as his reason the lavish expenditures by German profiteers "conspicuous for their eating, their drinking and their jewels" which he had observed in expensive Swiss hotels. "May I suggest," said he, "that before asking American help, you invite these German profiteers to look after their own flesh and blood."

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXXIV.—KANSAS

WAY back in 1541 Coronado, the Spanish explorer, is reputed to have penetrated to Kansas in search of a mythical wealthy Indian tribe. It was not again visited, however, by white men until nearly one hundred and seventy-five years later, when the French in Louisiana sent out an expedition to investigate the remote portions of what was then their territory. Most of the present State of Kansas was a part of the Louisiana Purchase and [illegible] to the United States in 1803. A small additional part was later added in 1850, being ceded by Texas.

The Lewis and Clark party traversed this region in 1804, and Lieutenant Pike [illegible] through Kansas two years later.

Kansas history really becomes interesting in the middle of the century, when the slavery agitation gave it the name of "Bleeding Kansas." It had been an unorganized territory since 1821, at which time it had been considered a portion of the Territory of Missouri. According to the Missouri Compromise, if Kansas became a state it could not be a slavery state. The opposition of the South was so strong the Kansas-Nebraska bill was passed in 18[illegible], making this vital question optional with the inhabitants in each proposed state. With this law in force, the two factions actively started colonizing Kansas. Immigrants from the slave states of Arkansas and Missouri immediately founded Leavenworth. The Massachusetts Emigrant Aid society sent out anti-slavery settlers, who founded Lawrence, Topeka and other towns. Conflict between these two parties broke out at once, and it was only put down by the intervention of federal troops. The Northern settlers came in such numbers that they soon were in the majority and in 1861 an anti-slavery constitution was adopted, so Kansas was admitted to the Union in that year.

The political dispute over Kansas was the cause of the formation of the present Republican party.

When Furniture Is Scratched.

The best remedy for scratched furniture is a mixture of beeswax and turpentine, the former melted in the turpentine until it is as thick as sirup. Pour a little onto a piece of woolen cloth and rub it well into the scratched part. Then polish quickly with dry flannel, and the marks will almost disappear.

A Larger Appropriation for Better Service

Last Month we announced a program of reconstruction and improvements to cost $244,000. This work was planned to improve the quality of service to the public.

After Careful consideration of all the problems involved, we have decided to increase this amount to $455,000—$211,000 more than was originally planned to be expended on improved service.

These improvements will take the form of increased line capacities, general improvements to local gas and electric distribution systems, extensions to serve new business, new substations and new water storage facilities.

We realize that there have been times when the quality of service left much to be desired. But we are equally sure that when the contemplated improvements are completed, we will be giving a class of service second to none.
